IDEAS.

Unless a man is sincere he can nev er be a hero in his own estimation.

THE LARGER PRAYER At first I prayed for Light-Could I but see the way,

How gladly, swiftly, would i walk To everlasting day! And next I prayed for strength. That I might tread the road With firm, unfaltering feel, and win-

The heavens scrette abode. And then I asked for Faith Could I lost trust my God, I'd live enfolded in His peace

Though loes were all abroad. Bul now I pray for Love Beep love to God and man A living love that will not fail, However dark His plan. And Light and Strength and Faith

Are opening everywhere I punyed the larger prayer.

A French Canadian trapper, Joseph Zolique La Joie, says he has discovered the North Pole. According to his own statement, he ran up against the pole while drifting on an ice floe. On his unwilling journey, La dole ate several of his dogs, and all the fish he could find. He struck land after a cold journey of long duration, and was taken in charge by a Polar race of Indians, who took him upon a mountain that gave forth a volcanic light. This mountain, La Joie firmly believes, is the North Pole.

The earpenter came, and he and two or three of the gnard lald hold of one end of the plank after its nails were drawn, and with little exertion ripped It off the other posts. Then everybody held his breath a minute, starrd, and a small majority swore. So far from its being open to cats, cans and rubbish, the space on that side was filled solid with damp, heavy sea sand-a vertical wall extending from floor to ground. Canker almost ran around to the opposite side and had a big plunk torn off there. Within was a wall as damp, solid and straight as that first discovered, and so, when examined, were the other two sides provided. Canker's face was n sturdy, and the board gazed and was profoundly happy.

At last the colonel exploded: "By Jupiter! They haven't got away at all, then! There isn't a flaw in the sand walt anywhere. They must be hiding about the middle now. Come on. gentlemen," and around he trotted to the front door. "Sergeant," he caied. "get out all the prisoners-all their bedding-every blessed thing they've got. I want to examine that floor."

Most of the guardhouse "birds" were out chopping wood, and Canker danced In aroung the few remaining, louding them with bedding belonging to their fellows until every item of clothing and furniture was shoved out of the room. One member of the hoard and one only failed to enter with his associates-a veteran captain who read much war literature and abhorred Canker. To the surprise of the sentry he walked deliberately over to the fence, climbed it. and presently begon poking about the wooden earb that ran along the road, making a low revetment or retaining wall for the earth, cinders and gravel that, distributed over the sand, had been hopefully designated a sidewalk by the owners of the tract. Presently he came snuntering back, and both sentries within casy range would have sworn he was chnckling. Canker greeted him with customary asperity.

"What do you mean, sir, by absenting yourself from this investigation, when you must have known I was with the board and giving it the benefit of the Information I had gathered?"

"I was merely expediting matters, colonel. While you were looking for where they went in I was finding where they got out."

"Went in what? Got out of what?" snapped Canker.

"Their tunnel, slr. It's Libby on a small scale over again. They must have been at work at it at least ten days." And as he spoke, calmly ignoring Canker and letting his eyes wander over the floor, the veteran battalion commander sauntered across the room, stirred up a slightly projecting bit of flooring with the toe of his boot and placidly continued: "If you'll be good enough to let the men pry this up you may understand. And when pried up and lifted awaya snugly fitting trup door about two feet square - there yowned beneath it, leading slantwise downward in the direction of the street, a tunnel through the soft yielding sand, braced and strengthened here and there with lids and sides of cracker-boxes. "Now, if you don't mind straddling a fence, slr, I'll show you the other end," said the eaptain, imperturbably leading the way, and Canker, half-dazed yet wholly In command of his stock of blasphemy, followed. At the eurb, in the midst of a lot of loose hay from the bales dumped there three days before, the leader dislodged with his sword the top of a cloth-Ing box that had been thickly covered with sand and hay-and there was the outlet. "Easy as rolling off a log. colonel," said old Cobb, with a sarcastle grin. "This could all be done without a man you've blamed and arrested being a whit the wiser. They sawed a panel out of the floor, scooped the sand out of this tunnel, banked it solld against the weather boarding luside, filled up the whole space, pretty near, but can their tunnel under fence and sidewalk, crawled down the gutter to the next block out of sight of the sentrles, then walked away free men. Those three thieves who got away were old hands. The other men in the guardrelease my sergeant and those sentrles

"I'll do nothing of the kind," answered Canker, red with wrath, "and your suggestion is disrespectful to your commanding officer. When I want your advice I'll ask for it."

"Well, Mr. Gray will be relieved to learn of this anyhow. I suppose I may tell him," hazarded the juntor member, inlachievously,

"Mr. tirny br---. Mr. Gray has everything to miswer for!" shouted the angered colonel. "It was he who telephoned for a carriage to meet and run those rasenls off. Mr. tirny's fate is sealed. He can thank God I don't ship him into the guardhouse with his chosen associates, but he shan't escape. Sergeant of the guard, post a sentry over Lleut, Gray's tent, with orders to allow no one to enter or leave it without my written authority. Mr. Gray shall pay for this behind the prison bars of Alentraz."

CHAPTER VIII. Social elicles at West Point at long, rare intervals are shocked by a scandat, and at short ones, say every other summer-are stirred by some klml of a sensation, and the "Fairy Sisters" were the sensation of the year '97. They came in July; they went in September, and meanwhile they were "on the go" as they expressed it, from morn till late at night. Physically they were the lightest weights known to the hop room. Mentally, as their admirers in the corps expressed It, "either of them can take a fall out of any woman at the Point," and this was especially true of the elder-Mrs. Frank Garrisonwhose husband was on staff duty in the far west. Both were slight, fragile, tiny blondes with light blue eyes, with lighter, flutty halr, with exquisite little hunds awl feet, with oval, prettily shaped faces, and the younger, the maiden sister, had a bewitching month and regular, snowy dots of teeth of which she was justly proud. Yet, as has been previously said of Mrs. Prank. while the general effect was in the case of each that of an extremely pretty young girt, the chler had no really good features, the younger only that one. They generally dressed very much alike in light, thimsy gowns and hats, gloves and summer shoes all of dazcling white-sometimes verging for a change to a creamy line-but colors, except for sashes and summer shawls, seemed banished from their wardrobes. They danced divinely, said the corps. and preferred cadet partners, to the joy of the battation. They rode fearlessly and well, and had stunning hats and liabits, but few opportunities for display thereof. They came tripping down the path from the hotel every morning, fresh and fair as daistes, in time for guard mounting, and at any hour after that could be found chatting with eadet friends at the visitors' tent, strolling arm in arm about the slinded walks with some of their many admirers until time to dress for the evening hop, where they never missed a dance, and on rainy days, or on those evenings, when there was neither hop nor band practice, they could be found, each in some dimity lighted, secluded nook about the north or west piazza or on the steps leading down to the "t'Inda Battery Walk," sometimes surroughed by a squad of endet friends, but more frequently in murmured tete-a-tete with only one cavalier. In the case of Mrs. Frank no member of the corps seemed especially favored-She was just the same to every one. In the case of her younger sister-Miss Terriss-there presently developed n dashing young cadet captain who so scientifically conducted his campaign that be headed off plinost all competltors and was presently accorded the lead under the universally accepted theory that he had won the little lady's heart. Observant women-and what women are not observant-of each other?--declared both sisters to be desperate flirts. Society at the Point frowned upon them and, after the first formal call or two, drouped them entirely-a thing they pever seemed to resent in the least, or even to notice. They were never invited out to tea or dinner on the post-solemn functions nowhere mar so palatable as the whispered homage of stalwart young manhood. "Nita is yet such a chiht she infinitely prefers cadet society, and I ulways did like boys," explained Mts. tiarrison. Some rather gay old boys used to run up Saturday afternoons on the Mary Powell and spend Sunday at the Point-Wall street men of 50 years and punch Incre. "Dear old friends of father's," Mrs. Frank used to say, "and I've simply got to entertain them." Entertained they certainly were, for her wit and vivacity were acknowledged on every side, and entertained not only collectively, but severally, for she always managed to give each his hour's confidential chat, and on the Sundays of their coming had no time to spare for cadet friends. Moreover, she always drove down in the big 'los with them Monday mern-Ing when the Powell was sighted coming along that glorious mach from Polopel's island and stond at the edge of the wharf waving her tiny kerchief -even blowing farry kisses to them as they stenmed away. No wonder Nita Terriss was Trivolons and thrtations with such an example, said soeiety, and its frowns grew blacker when the White Sisters, the Pairy Sisters-the 'Sylphites," came in view But frowns and fulminations both fell harmless from the armor of Mcs

All of a sudden the news came back to the Point a few mouths after his return to his regiment that he was actually engaged to "Witchle" Terriss. Hot on the heels of the rumor came the wedding eards - Lieut, Col. and Mrs. Tecriss requested the honor of your presence at the marriage of their daughter Margaret to Lient. Francis Key Garrison, -th U. S. Cavalry, at the Post Chapel. Fort Riley, Kansas, November . , 1894. -nll in Tiffany's best style, as were the eards which accompanied the invitathen. "What a good thing for obl-Hill Terriss," said everybody who knew that his impermiosity was due to the exactions and extravagancies of his wife and "Witchie"-"And what a bad thing for Frank Garrison!" was the echo. His intimates knew that he had "put by" through economy and selfdenial about $2,000, the extent of his fortune outside of his pay. "She'll make ducks and drakes of It in the six weeks' honeymoon," was the confident proplicey, and she probably did, for, despite the fact that he had so recently rejoined the regiment, "Witchie" insisted on a midwinter run to New ttrlenns, Savannah and Washington, and bore her lord, but not her master, over the course in triumph. To a student of human nature-and frailty, that union of i faded and somewhat shopworn mald of 27 to an ardent and vigorous young sof dier many moons the juntor was casy to account for. One after another Witchie Terriss had had desperate affairs with half a dozen fellows, older or younger, in the army and was known to have been engaged to five different men at different times, and believed to have been engaged to two different men at one time. Asked as to this by one of her chains, she was reported to have replied: "Do you know, I behave it trne; I had totally forgotten about Ned Colston before Mr. Porman had been at the post a week. Of course the only thing to do was to break with both and let them start fresh." But this Mr. Colston, whose head had been somewhat cleured by a month of breezs, healthful sconting, accepted only in part-that part which included the break. Forman had the fresh start and the walk over and held the trophy just two months, when it dawned upon him that Margaret level dancing far more than she did him--a chimsy per-

But if she did not love ber husband there was one being in whom her frivolous heart was really bound up Vita-her "balty sister," us she called ber, and when Terriss, the coionel, went the way of all flesh, proceeded only a few months by the wife of his bosom, the few thousands in life insurance he had managed to maintain went to the two daughters. Not one penny was ever laid out in payment of the delds of either the father or husband. Nita was sent to an extravigant finishing school in Gothum, and along in May of the young girl's graduating year, bitthe little Mrs Garrison arrived, fresh Itom the far west, and ofter a tew weeks of sight-seeing and shopping the sisters appeared at the Puint, even half-mourning by this time disearched. Thirteen cars difference was there in the ages of the Fairy Sisters, and not a soul save those who knew them in torner days on the frontier would have suspected it. Then the sis ters would go into the dluing-room and have some light refreshments, with a ghiss of leaf tea-and no matter how torrid the heat or how flushed and dragged other women might look, they were inviting pictures of all that was ever fresh, cool and fragrant. The two fluffy blonde heads would be huldled close together a minute as they studied the bill of lare, and virtuous matrons at other tables, fanning vigorously, would snlff and say: "All for effect. They know that supper bill by heart. never changes." All the same, at the bottom of this public display of sisterly devotion and harmony and in spite of occasional tiffs and differences, there was genuine affection on both sides, for us a child Nita had adored Margaret, and there could be no doubtlug the elder's love for the child. Some regi mental observers said that every bit of heart that chiest Terriss girl had was wrapped up in the little one. Neither girl, even after Margaret's marriage, girl, even after Margaret's marriage, would listen to a word in disparagement of the other, but in the sanctity of the sisterly retreat on the third flour of the old hotel there becarred sometimes spirited verbal tilts that were quite distinctly audible to passers by in the corridor, provided they cared to listen, which some of them did. On this especial Angust evening Mrs. Frank was in an admonitory frame of mind. They had known Mr. Latrobe barely three weeks, and yet as Mrs. Frank was samitering around a turn in Ellration Walk, leaning on the arm of the cade, adjutant, there in the pathway right ahead stood Nita, a lovely little picture, with downeast eyes, and "Fat" tarrobe bending over her with love and passion glowing in his hundsome face, pleading energly clipping fervently to little picture. glowing in his hundsome face, pleading engerly, clinging fervently to both her thry white-gloved hunds. Mass Garrison saw it all in the tlash of a second, the adjutant not at all, for with merry laughter she repeated some words he had just spoken as though they were about the wittlest, funblest things in the world, and looked frankly up luto his eyes as though he were the best and brightest ionn she had niet in years. so his eyes were riveted, and the tableun had time to dissolve. All the same that sight gave Mrs. Garrison rather more than a bad quarter of un bour. She was infinitely worrled. Not beenuse Pat-Latrobe had fallen desperately in love with her charming little sister that was his lookout but what ob, what might not happen if the charming little sister were to fall in love with that handsome soldier boy. At all hizares, even if she had to whish her away tomorrow, that had to be stopped, and this very evening when they went to their room Margaret spoke.

Tile Drainage. Some think the only gain from un derdraining is that the soil is dry enough to work sooner after hard rains and will yield better crops when the season is wet. This is not all the benefit by any means, for in addition to the above the following reasons for ditching can be named: 1. A better yield in dry sensons. 2. It is ensier to keep the ground clear of weeds. 3. Vegetables, grass, etc., are made more palatable. 4. Wheat and clover do not heave out so much by freezing and thawing. 5. The soil does not wash so much. 6. it makes the soil more
